THE WILDFLOWER BEE & BEE

A top tourist destination, the quaint New Brunswick coastal town of St. Andrews is home to the world-renowned Wildflower Bee & Bee.

This Bee & Bee is an extremely elaborate two-hundred-year-old beehive beautifully situated along the banks of Passamaquoddy Bay.

The Wildflower Bee & Bee boasts several stylish water-view sleeping pods each with a honeycomb balcony, edible hanging baskets, and silky soft spider-web hammocks.

Their popular Tapis & Honey Bar, The Bees Knees, is highly buzzed about.

The biggest attraction is the expansive wildflower garden - filled with delicious herbs and flowers to meet every bee's discerning needs (popular with butterflies too!).

THE BUZZBEES

After enjoying a spectacular summer visiting St. Andrews, the Buzzbee family of Bob, Betty and their twins, Mia and Coop, wanted to live there.

Betty's lifelong dream was to own a Bee & Bee and when they discovered that the Wildflower Bee & Bee was for sale, she knew it was meant to bee. On a wing and a prayer, they made an offer and became the proud new owners.

Bob was reading the daily Buzz Feed and was thrilled to see their Bee & Bee featured in an article.

"Betty!" he exclaimed, "You've got to read this... our antennae will be ringing off the hook!"

Betty glanced over Bob's wing and read aloud, "The Wildflower Bee & Bee is a must buzz-by on your travels. The two-hundred-year-old hive is a splendor to behold – a tribute to our Great, Great, Great, GranBees. The succulent wildflower gardens will keep you feasting for hours and the scent of ocean spray will lull you to sleep in your silky homespun spider-web hammock. A stunning masterpiece that delivers a master peace-filled experience you'll always remember."

"Well then!" exclaimed Betty, "I'd best round up the worker bees and get ready."

Bob stretched out his wings in the warmth of the sun and contemplated the beauty of the day. He thought to himself, “It’s times like this that I’m especially grateful to be a drone.”

Bob met Betty during a spelling bee competition held at Beelieve University (Bee U) where he was studying philosophy. Bob was smitten and knew she was the only Queen for him.

The twins interrupted Bob’s reverie, with Coop buzzing excitedly, “Dad, it’s time to go whale watching. Hurry! The dragonfly boat is boarding.”

Mia added, “I want to see a Right Whale. I know it’s rare, but a sea gull spotted one yesterday.”

Bob said, “OK, as long as we’re back in time for your Newbees class at Sunbee Shores.”

GETTING READY FOR TOURIST SEASON

The worker bees gathered excitedly around Betty. They adored their Queen and were happy to do her bidding – especially when the employ^{bee} benefits included unlimited access to the gardens.

“This is going to be a super buzzed season,” said Betty. “We are already completely booked!”

“After our grand opening on World Bee Day, we’ll host the annual New Brunswick Wild Blueberry Pollinators Conference. They’re locals – leaf cutting bees, digger bees, bumblebees and sweat bees,” said Betty. “Apparently they’re a handful when they buzz loose but they are paying top dollar.”

The laundry bees groaned, “The sweat bees are jovial but they need three sheet changes daily!”

Betty sympathized with them. “We’ll hire a few more workers to help during their stay.”

Betty continued, “We’re hosting the Gala for the Indulge Tour. The Queen Mum is our guest of honour, so we’ll need to be on our best beehaviour!”

“Mia, go to Melly’s Beetique and get decorations for the Royal Suite,” said Betty. “Melly is a superb fashion bee, she’ll know exactly what to do.”

Betty spotted her servers and said, “Shelbee and Beeclaire, buzz down to the beach and collect shells for our firefly centrepieces. I simply adore the romantic ambeeance they create!”

Betty clapped her wings. “Now turn up the buzz everyone. You know what to do.”
